ANNOUNCEMENTS

International Obel Award Teaching Fellowship: Nooshin Esmaeili

The OBEL AWARD Teaching Fellowships brings the professional and academic realms closer together by enhancing the debate and learnings of the themes of the award. These themes reflect pressing issues and express the potential of architecture and design to positively impact our built environment. Nooshin Esmaeili – PhD student at SAPL, is the recipient of one of three inaugural international Obel Award Teaching Fellowships. Read about it here

Congratulations Nooshin!
The Ogden Block

The Ogden Block, at 7044 Ogden Road, has a long and interesting history. Built in 1914 by Chinese immigrants, the structure was originally used as a Chinese laundry. Many people have worked hard to have the historic building removed from the Green Line LRT demolition list.

The Millican Ogden Heritage Group are planning an event to celebrate the local history of Ogden in Spring of 2024 and are looking for someone to donate artist renderings of the Ogden block in situ with the Green Line station. If you are interested in volunteering please reach out to chelsea.barnowich@gmail.com.

The National Urban Design Awards

The National Urban Design Awards are now open until Thursday, January 11, 2024. Submissions can be made directly from individual students or groups of students enrolled in an accredited program in architecture, landscape architecture, and/or planning in the past two years. Such students and student groups may also be nominated by their schools to submit. Students and schools may forward submissions from studio or thesis projects with an emphasis on urban design.

All SAPL students are eligible to apply!
